“Someone, help us, please,” Miriam whispered. An eagle screeched, more voices shouted, and something grabbed her left arm. Wanting to scream, she jerked herself free from whatever — or whoever had touched her.

In 1807, eleven year-old Miriam must face her greatest fears. She and her twin brother, Moses, take a surprise trip up the Columbia River with her family and friends. What is supposed to be a peaceful time of trading turns into a series of events filled with heart-thumping danger. When evil people kidnap her new friend, Miriam must act. She is willing to pay any price to help set her friend free.
