The Soul's Voice Series: Book 4

High frequency trading has taken over the stock market on Wall Street and the stakes are higher than they have ever been. Tens of thousands of shares of stocks are bought and sold in transactions that take only millionths of a second and that's a huge problem, because when the stock market becomes an entity for legalized stealing to the tune of eleven billion dollars a year, it can make people angry and resentful.

FBI Special Agent Jordan Hawkins and computer expert Doctor Catherine Bernard get a new case; a male torso has turned up in New Jersey and the murdered man was a high frequency trader. Jordan suspects organized crime, but when the torsos begin piling up, she is forced to consider a lone killer, with twisted goals for justice and retribution that can never be satisfied.
