This book is for any physician, new or veteran, U.S. or International Medical Graduate (IMG), looking for the best possible job position (even if it is in HPSA or MUA/P) and is tired of dealing with empty promises from medical recruiters. Includes a reality-based initial description of your current status and professional options, common misconceptions and a tentative calendar of events. The first half is about how to select a location and why this is the most important decision for your financial future; a brief overview of strategies for obtaining wealth and mastering a secure and comfortable (early) retirement; what is and why "passive income" is the long term goal; how to approach the business reality of a medical private practice. Furthermore, how to select a location and search for your best possible job, how to assemble a Professional Portfolio (and why cover letters and personal statements are very important), how to prepare for a job interview (both with questions/answers and the professional code on how to dress and present yourself); how to initially assess an employment contract and negotiate salary and benefits. The second half shows, side-by-side, ten samples of bad documents and ten samples of better documents for a professional portfolio, with comments about the most frequent mistakes and how to deal with special issues.
